

Arbey, 18 years old, and Alisha, six weeks

"My father is an abusive drunk. He didn't give a toss when I told him I was going to be father, he thought it was a joke. He wasn't around when I was growing up and I don't want Alisha to miss out like I did. She will get the things a normal child should have, like love and support from a father and family who are there everyday. I have to make a future for myself so my daughter can be proud of me – I don't want her to see me as a drunken bum. I want to be a role model more than anything."
